Prevalence of Anemia among students of Smt. Bakul Tambat Institute of Nursing Education

Introduction:

Anemia, defined as a low blood hemoglobin concentration, has been shown to be a public health problem that affects low, middle and high-income countries and has significant adverse health consequences, as well as adverse impacts on social and economic development.

The most reliable indicator of anemia, at the population level, is blood hemoglobin concentration, with the most significant contributor being iron deficiency. Anemia resulting from iron deficiency adversely affects cognitive and motor development, causes fatigue and low productivity and, when it occurs in pregnancy, may be associated with low birth weight and increased risk of maternal and perinatal mortality.

Causes: Approximately 50% of cases of anemia are considered to be due to iron deficiency, but the proportion probably varies among population groups and in different areas, according to the local conditions.

Other causes include: micronutrient deficiencies, acute and chronic infections, and inherited or acquired disorders that affect hemoglobin synthesis, RBC production / RBC survival

Causation of anemia is multifactorial – Nutrition, Infection and Genetic & hereditary Anemia – serious public health problem in India

Strategy implemented to prevent or treat anemia, could be tailored to local conditions, taking into account the specific etiology, and prevalence of anemia in a given setting and population group.

Study statement: Prevalence of Anemia among students of Nursing College:

Objective of case study:

To assess the prevalence of anemia among nursing students in selected nursing educational institutes of the City.

Purpose and Scope:

- This report is going to describe the scenario of anemic women and stages of anemia of the reproductive age 17- 40 from 2015-2020.
- This Report may serve us the proper canalization of anemic reports from entire years. It will emphasize the statistics of anemia levels and final results.

Data analysis:

Data Received:

Data includes haemoglobin values of Nursing college students (Women) from year 2015 to 2020.

Information of women consisted of Name of the student, Year of study, Age, haemoglobin, Course taken.

Age of Women varies from 17 to 40.

Data Cleaning:

Data was raw as in the Hb Column some of the entries were not proper for further analysis being; Null, Left college or Improper format. We filtered that data and finalized the appropriate data for analyzing.

Data Preparation for further Analysis: Adjustment of data on hemoglobin levels-

Hb levels were defined as below

Higher HB level: greater than 15.1 mg/dl

Normal Hb level: 12.1 to 15.1 mg/dl

Mild anemia Hb level: 10.1 to 12.1 mg/dl

Moderate anemia Hb level: 8.1 to 10.1 mg/dl

Severe anemia Hb level: less than 8 mg/dl

Adjustment of data on Age range – 17-23, 24-29, 30-35, 36-40
